Town on the hunt for new CAO

BY FRANK DABBS
MVP Staff

The Town of Didsbury has engaged Toronto-based Ravenhill Group human resources firm to recruit a new chief administrative officer, Mayor Rick Mousseau confirmed Friday.

The town's contract with the current CAO, Roy Brown, was renewed in June and expires in March 2016, Mousseau acknowledged.

Brown was not available last week to discuss his retirement, or his goals in the remaining time he will be CAO.

An official said he is expected to be absent from the town office for about a month.

Brown was to retire this year and was grooming Luana Smith, Didsbury's assistant CAO and manager of legislative and planning services, as his replacement.

However the Village of Cremona hired her as its CAO.

The Ravenhill Group specializes in recruiting municipal administrative executives.

It has a Calgary office to handle its western Canadian business and is also looking for a CAO for Provost, a director of finance for Inuvik, a director of planning for West Vancouver, and a director of community services for Kindersley.

Ravenhill's posting for the Didsbury CAO has an Aug. 31 deadline for applications and Michel Savard of the firm is handling inquiries for the position.

He will assist in the screening and selection process that will follow the application period.

Ravenhill doesn't say what the new CAO will be paid.

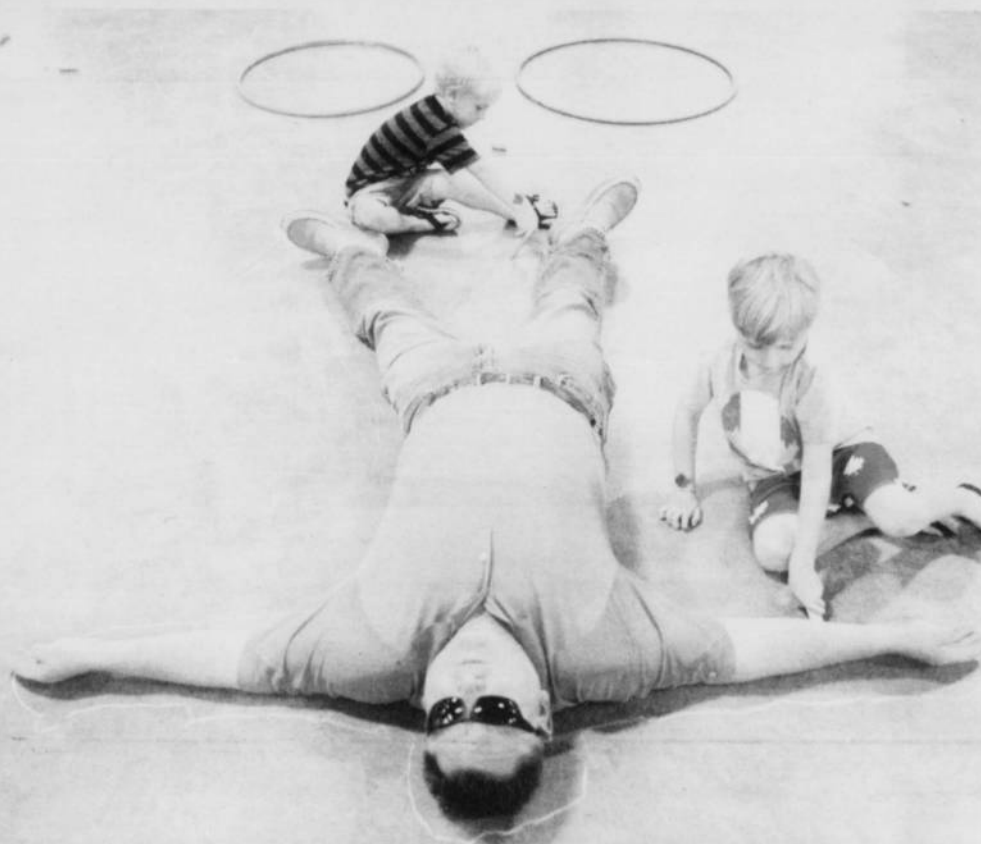

"Starting salary will depend on compensation history and qualifications," its posting says.

"The ideal candidate," according to the recruiter, "will be judicious and tactful, and adept at managing varied and sometimes competing demands."

"Very important is town council's interest in hiring an innovative thinker with a flare for economic development to complement Didsbury's growth."

On behalf of the town, Ravenhill Group is looking for "an exceptional listener and communicator with a customer-service orientation."

"The CAO will need to be a decision maker, a strategic planner and a skilled manager of people."

Don't approach youths on the lam: police

BY LEA SMALDON
MVP Staff

Two female youths residing at a group home in Didsbury were still on the lam yesterday after allegedly attacking and confining a staff worker and escaping in the facility's van July 4.

A third female youth police say was involved in the incident turned herself in to the Calgary Police Service.

A warrant has been issued for a 15-year-old described as Aboriginal with olive complexion, 5 feet 8 inches, 130 pounds, hazel eyes and brown hair.

Police have also issued a warrant for a 16-year-old Caucasian with fair complexion, 5 feet 1 inch, 125 pounds, with blue eyes and blond hair.

"The public is cautioned against approaching these girls," said Didsbury RCMP Sgt. Kim Paslowske.

The lone staff worker at the group home was attacked by the three teens around 8:50 p.m. Saturday night.

Weapons were used, said Paslowske, but she declined to specify.

The staff member's injuries "aren't serious in nature," she added.

After the attack, police say the teens confined the staff worker and took the facility's van.

Police are asking the public to be on the lookout for a silver 2007 Toyota Sienna van with an Alberta licence number of 89H783.

The three youths and the staff worker were the only ones at the group home at the time of the incident.

The youth aren't being named under provisions of the Youth Criminal Justice Act. Paslowske also declined to name the group home's name.

Anyone with information regarding the whereabouts of the youth are asked to contact the Didsbury RCMP or call Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-8477.

Summer kickoff event just the beginning

BY FRANK DABBS
MVP Staff

Summer holidays began in Didsbury with Canada Day at the Memorial Complex, an afternoon of ice cream and cake, music, swimming, games, the farmers market and evening fireworks.

The day was an open invitation to a summer full of local events that stretch out through July and August.

The season is what agricultural society president Craig Anderson called "an outing with neighbours" when he described the fair and rodeo, which will be held Aug. 11 to 14.

The rodeo is the marquee event of the summer.

It may be Didsbury's biggest occasion of the year in terms of interest, attendance and participation, Anderson said.

He expects upwards of 250 cowboys and cowgirls to register for the Foothills Cowboy Association rodeo, to challenge each other in bareback riding, saddle bronc, bull riding, steer riding, calf roping, steer wrestling, team roping and ladies barrel racing.

On the light side, there will be the Elks' pancake breakfast and parade on Saturday, muttin' bustin', the men's calf scramble, and Thunder in the Night fireworks following the rodeo events on Friday night.

Weather permitting a tractor pull is scheduled for Sunday.

"You can't pull tractors in the mud if it rains," Anderson said.

The first event in Didsbury after Canada Day is the horse show

July 11 and 12 at the agricultural society's horse area on the rodeo grounds.

A decision to cut dressage and jumping events to tailor the weekend to the number of volunteers means that all events this year will be held indoors.

"We don't get as big a crowd for the horse show as for the rodeo, but both the horses and riders are judged. So if you like horses and (equestrian) competition, it's great to attend," Anderson said.

Spirits fly high on Canada Day

BY SYLVIA COLE
MVP Staff

An overcast start to July 1 kept attendance numbers down for the 24th annual Canada Fun Fly but spirits still soared high for the model airplane pilots in attendance.

"When we started out in the morning the weather was inclement but it ended up being a really nice day," said Ray Arie, field manager of the Didsbury R/C Fun Flyers.

Each Canada Day the Flyers invite other clubs from around the province to their club field located north of Didsbury to fly model airplanes.

Typically Arie said close to 200 people will show up for the event but added this year the numbers were down 50 per cent because of the rain.

"It was a little lower than usual but everyone had a great time," said vice-president Mark Willdig.

He explained that the Canada Day Fun Fly is one of the club's biggest annual events and does, at times, attract new members. Willdig said the club currently has 20 members but the numbers will fluctuate slightly over the year.

"We go through a bit of a rotation. Some guys will get out and then others will join in," he said, noting there are currently two new, younger members: one who is eight and one who is 16. He said it's a great hobby for anyone interested and said being part of the club gives people a chance to get ideas from one another. For example, on Canada Day, members from other clubs brought model helicopters, something Didsbury members don't have. It's also a chance to spend time with other people, flying planes. That's something Arie and Willdig said is a fun experience.

"A lot of people think it's expensive but you can get a lot of new technology that's very inexpensive," said Willdig.

Willdig's interest in the hobby started when he was young. His father was a "model nut" back in the 1930s and 1940s and introduced it to Willdig. For the past nine years

Willdig has been a member of the Didsbury R/C Fun Flyers.

"We are always working on models, building and/or repairing models," he said. "In the winter we fly indoors at the (Westglen) middle school. We get together twice a month and do an indoor round."

He said the indoor airplanes are only about 10 inches and wouldn't fair well outdoors. The outdoor models can be upwards of seven feet.

The club's next big event is next month when it will host an aerobatics competition with competitors coming from around the province. Arie said there will be 10 to 15 pilots competing and will be part of a sequence of patterns that they fly. That event runs the same weekend as the Didsbury

Rodeo, Aug. 15.

$15 an hour still not a living wage

In the June 23 issue of the Didsbury Review MLA Nathan Cooper was quoted in an article entitled "Some businesses could close due to gov't decisions." Specifically, he was opposed to the NDP government's plan to raise Alberta's minimum wage to $15 per hour.

Much has been written about the effect of this plan on businesses. But missing from the discussion is the benefit of a fairer minimum wage for those presently working at or anywhere near minimum wage. Raising the minimum to $15 per hour will be of great benefit to many. But $15 per hour still isn't a living wage.

Calgary's Living Wage Action Team defines a living wage as the amount of income an individual or family needs to meet their basic needs of housing, transportation, adequate nutritious food; to maintain a safe dignified standard of living; to save something for future needs; and to devote quality time to family, friends and community. To meet these standards, this group has determined that an individual working full time needs to earn a minimum of $17.29 per hour without benefits, or $16.14 per hour with benefits in Calgary. These figures are based on the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternative's Canadian Living Wage Framework.

This group has determined that more than half of those not earning a living wage are 25 or older, 62 per cent are women, and that there are some 117,500 people in Calgary working for less than a living wage.

That means that 117,500 people in Calgary are living in poverty. While the costs of poverty are largely invisible to many, poverty costs society a great amount. But the greatest cost is the unfairness and the indignity that we subject low-income earners to by forcing them to live with less than their basic needs.

CROSS BORDER RETALIATION

Violated by canned propaganda

Re: The commentary "Ending separate schools would build equality," on page 4 of the June 30 Didsbury Review Equality...really? By eliminating religious traditions in one sweep. Equality for some, elimination for others.

"Alberta should stop tolerating the separate school system." Written to aggressively promote the tiny-percentage driven social experimentation of the oxymoronic, non-biological, alternative family.

This bizarre logic is over the edge of irresponsibility for publication. Where is the editor's role with this canned propaganda? It makes the paper look stupid. I even feel violated just reading it!

Buying locally supports an entire community

Buying locally is a great way for consumers to find the products and services they're looking for and help their local economy along the way.

The small businesses in your community may be owned by your next door neighbour, who relies on his or her fellow townspeople to keep the business going strong.

Buying locally is not only beneficial for local business owners, but buying locally benefits consumers and members of the community in a number of ways.

Buying locally creates jobs. The number of unemployed men and women has gradually declined in recent years, but those figures are still high in many communities. Buying locally creates jobs in your community, potentially creating a job for you or a friend or family member.

Buying locally helps the environment. Buying within your community reduces the amount of fuel you're likely to use for a weekend shopping trip while also reducing pollution. In addition, many local store owners use local materials and ingredients, reducing the amount of fuel consumed to get products into the store.

Buying locally creates a more closely knit community. Juggling a career and a family can make it hard for men and women to get to know their neighbours and other members of their community. Buying locally is an opportunity to strengthen that bond with your neighbours, creating a close-knit community in which residents may feel safer and more comfortable.

Buying locally is more convenient. Convenience is paramount to many consumers, and buying locally saves both time and money. Driving to a faraway mall or shopping centre or paying costly online shipping fees is not nearly as quick or convenient as shopping within your community, where you can purchase and take home items on the same day without using a full tank of gas or paying for shipping.

The reasons for shopping locally are many. In addition to helping local business owners, consumers who shop locally are also helping themselves

Stolen trailer found

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

RCMP apprehended a Didsbury couple at about 11:30 a.m. on June 26 driving a U-haul with a covered trailer on Highway 582 northeast of Didsbury near Rosebud Park.

Sgt. Kimberley Pasloske said the suspects stole the trailer from Calgary earlier that morning. Police were alerted to the couple by a motorist who called police to report the vehicle being driven suspiciously. The couple was arrested and charged with possession of stolen property.

'Tenacious' fire destroys bales

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

The Didsbury Fire Department responded to a round bale fire on June 24 at about 1 p.m. that destroyed about 15 to 20 round bales approximately eight kilometres west of Didsbury on Rge. Rd. 25.

About 15 Didsbury firefighters responded to the fire with two pumper trucks, one rescue unit, one bush buggy and a tanker truck while two firefighters from Olds also attended the scene with a tanker truck. Firefighters spent about five hours fighting the fire.

Derek Sutherland, manager of protective services for the Town of Didsbury, said that while the land area involved with the fire was relatively small, the fire was tenacious and took a lot of effort for the firefighters to extinguish.

"The fire gets right into the bale and they have to roll the bale right out and then get a blanket of foam onto it. Sutherland estimated the loss to the farmer at about $1,500 to $2,000. A firefighter was also taken to hospital for heat exhaustion as a precautionary measure.
